BIGGER, BETTER FAIR PROMISED NEXT WEEK

A bigger and better honest to goodness County Fair—that's the slogan this year of President Donold J Andrews and the Board of Trustees of the Oxford County Agricultural Society, as they complete final plans for the 108th Oxford County Fair from Sept. 13 through to the 17th at the fairgrounds between Norway and South Paris.

These fair officials have set up a program that promises entertainment practically every minute from the opening of the gates on Tuesday morning for Young America Day until the final turn of the huge ferris wheel at midnight on the following Saturday.

An exhibit packed hall, the largest dairy show in the history of the society, a five-day horse pulling program, augmented by several sessions under the lights, featured by the open-to-the-state sweepstakes, Thursday afternoon; a mile of fun midway highlighted by the Merit Carnival, one of the largest in the East; a five-day pari-mutuel racing program, bringing to the Oxford track the outstanding steeds for the Sport of Kings, and a thrilling day and night vaudeville show on the open-air stage, followed each evening by a spectacular fireworks production, are only a few of the many entertainment features that will be packed into the five days of this honest to goodness County Fair, the second oldest in the state.

This group of fair officials point with pride to the new cattle sheds and grandstand that have risen from the ashes of the disastrous fire last May that destroyed the entire department. The first view of the fire ravaged area was disheartening but plans were immediately outlined for a new cattle department that would outshine any other in the state.

The result of their planning and work speaks for itself. Eight new cattle sheds constructed in rustic style are unlike any other in the state and their size has increased the housing facilities for stock far beyond any other year in the fair's history.

A smaller grandstand was erected on the site of the one levelled by the fire but it has been built with the opportunity to add to its length in future years.

For the past few years Oxford Fair has been forging ahead with its dairy stock display until this year every indication points to one of the finest and largest displays in the state. The comfortable and adequate quarters for the dairy stock with the new cattle buildings has brought a tremendous number of entries from cattle exhibitors throughout the entire state. Alpheus Jackson has received more entries for this showing than ever.

One large building will be devoted solely to the display of Maine sheep. Several of the long sheds will house the hundreds of stock, dairy and beef, that will be judged during the five days.

Oxford County Fair has long been recognized as the leading fair for horse pulling contests and this year promises to surpass all others. The officials have set up purses totaling more than $1600 for the events of the week. The popularity of pulling under the lights has caused Leon Newcomb, Fred Staples, and Joseph Penley to arrange special night events. The Sweepstakes on Thursday will bring to this fairgrounds the outstanding big teams in Maine to vie for the generous purses set up for this main event of the week.

An exhibit hall, crammed full of Maine's finest garden products, hand work, Grange, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, 4-H Club projects, along with displays by the Maine Agricultural Department will attract crowds.

Elmore C Edmunds, secretary of the fair society, and Onyma J Colby, have arranged a program in the hall that will be presented each afternoon and evening during the week.

The Merit Carnival will occupy the major portion of the midway along with the many old-time concessionaires. Rides and shows promise an abundance of fun and thrills throughout the entire fair week.

Vaudeville will be presented daily between the race heats and an hour long evening show on the huge open air stage will feature outstanding artists. Each evening show will be climaxed by a huge fireworks display.

The parimutuel racing program will get underway each afternoon at 1:30 and will bring together many of the horses that have been in competition here in Maine this

Elizabeth Mason Heads New Publicity Bureau Department

Miss Elizabeth A Mason has been appointed Community Relations manager of the Maine Publicity Bureau under the Boost Maine Expansion Program, Guy P Butler, executive manager of the organization, announced this week.

The new department of the Bureau headed by Miss Mason will offer advice and assistance to Maine communities on their promotional projects in an endeavor to stimulate economic activity at the community level. Assistance in planning and preparing special events, celebrations, festivals and other projects to attract people to the various communities will be among the functions of the new department, Butler said.

The new activity is made possible by the continuing success of the Boost Maine Campaign, which will come to a climax at a general, State-wide meeting in October, the Publicity Bureau chief declared. Although the intensive, county-by-county campaigns have been held, considerable followup work is now going on and campaign records still are being kept on county totals and committee member credits, Butler revealed.

Stimulation of business at the community level is a basic feature of the Boost Maine movement, accordnig to Butler, and community leaders are invited to discuss their various promotional projects with Miss Mason.

The new department head is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Herman Mason of West Bethel. She is a graduate of Gould Academy, the University of Maine, and Simmons School of Social Work. She formerly was associated with the State Department of Health and Welfare and traveled the United States during the war in connection with USO work. She has been a member of the Publicity Bureau's field staff for the past three years.

HUNTING FOR LARGER DEER MAY CUT RECKLESS SHOOTING

To encourage more careful hunting and for trophy deer instead of smaller whitetails, Maine, this fall, will inaugurate "The Biggest Bucks in Maine Club," Inland Fisheries and Game Commission, George J Stobie, said recently.

Bucks weighing 200 pounds or more live weight will be certified by wardens, on request, and the hunters who bag such trophies will be made eligible for the unique club. The Maine Development Commission, already sponsoring a fishing group, "The One That Didn't Get Away Club," will award a certificate of membership and shoulder patch for hunting coat to the fortunate sportsman who bags such a trophy, Stobie stated.

By encouraging hunters to wait for the big one, it is believed much of the reckless shooting behind accidents in the past may be eliminated, the commissioner explained. Further, many small deer will have a chance to survive the season and the doe kill will be cut, as well.

Information will be made available to wildlife conservationists in Maine, too, the commissioner said. The application forms will ask such questions as: hunter's name, date deer is shot, where shot, caliber rifle or gauge shotgun used, the dressed weight of the buck, estimated live weight, greatest spread of antlers, length of outside curves of left and right antlers, and similar information.

The club will be open to residents and non-residents. Membership will be limited to hunters taking deer in Maine in accordance with the game laws. Guides, camp owners and wardens will not be eligible. Wardens only can certify deer and the minimum dressed weight is 160 pounds. Authoritative estimates state 30% should be added to dressed weight to give estimated live weight.

CUMMINGS - CONNER

Mrs Ada Conner of Bethel and Philip Cummings of Locke Mills were married Aug. 28 at the home of Mr and Mrs Albert Cotton. Rev William Penner officiated, using the double ring service.

Attendants were Miss Marguerite Cotton of Bethel, niece of the bride, and Theodore Cummings of Locke Mills, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore navy blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Cotton wore brown taffeta and carried pink roses.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Boston and Abington, Mass. They will make their home in Locke Mills.

Misses Ruth Donahue and Reona Bean returned Wednesday after spending a couple of days in Lewiston with Mrs Addie Linehan.

Miss Clare Tyler, who has been employed in the Bethel branch of the Casco Bank & Trust Co. the past three years, has completed her work there and will attend the New England School of Art in Boston beginning Sept. 27.

The people of the Methodist Church are invited to an informal gathering at the church at 7:30 Thursday evening, Sept. 15, in honor of Rev and Mrs William Penner and family, who are leaving soon to live in Barnet, Vt.

ENROLLMENT UP 23 AS BETHEL SCHOOLS OPEN

For the fourth consecutive year the school enrollment in the Bethel schools has gone up. The count on opening day this year was 468 as with 445 for last year. This is an increase of over twenty. The increase is primarily in the lower grades.

The enrollment by buildings and grades is as follows: Bethel Grammar School: Grade 8, 46; grade 7, 44; grade 6, 38; grade 5, 43. Primary School: Grade 4, 42; grade 3, 41; grade 2, 35; grade 1, 36; Junior Primary, 49. The enrollment in the rural schools is South Bethel 32, West Bethel 31, East Bethel 31, the first five years being maintained in each of these schools.

There has been a large entering class this year. As noted above, there are 49 in the village primary building, and to this is added eight at South Bethel, four at West Bethel and six at East Bethel, making a total of 67 beginners.

FALL FOLK DANCE CAMP SEPT. 12-19 AT KEZAR LAKE

Maine's second Folk Dance Camp is being planned for September 12-19 at Sunset Inn, Kezar Lake in Lovell.

The camp will include two sessions, the first Sept. 12-15, and the second Sept. 15-19.

Especially designed for Recreation Leaders and Folk Dance enthusiasts, the time will be spent learning new folk and square dances and in folk singing. Outstanding are the Nationality meals served under the direction of Mrs Joseph Maxwell, of Triadelphia, West Virginia, nationally known authority on Nationality meals.

The staff includes Miss Jane Farwell, Rural Recreation Leader of Dodgeville, Wisconsin, originator of Folk Dance camps; Mary Ann and Michael Herman of the Community Folk Dance Center, New York City and editor of the "Folk Dancer Magazine"; Ralph Page, New England's Singing Caller and Editor of the Folk Magazine, "Northern Lights", and Miss Bernice Scott, Extension Agent for Rural Youth, Ithaca, N. Y., who is well known for her ability as a folk song leader.

Anyone interested in learning more about the camps or wishing to attend the camps, should write to Miss Hope Moody, South Paris, Maine.

WELFARE FUND COMMITTEE SEEKS BILLS AND PROCEEDS

The Finance Committee of the Community Welfare Fund requests that all bills and collections please be turned in so they can be in a position to consider cases. Meanwhile any appeals should be presented to the chairman, Hugh Thurston. It might be stated that the committee considers the funds are held in trust only for cases of dire need.

I REMEMBER...

By THE OLD-TIMERS

From "Old-Timer Indeed" of Glover Gap, W. Va.: "I remember when our industrious mothers would take their sewing or knitting over to a neighbor's house to spend the whole day there."

From Mrs. Mary Stewart of Chicago: "I remember when white-collared men wore the same light shirt all week, using a clean, detachable collar every day. The Chinese laundryman did the collars for two cents a piece. Some men wore celluloid collars which could be cleaned simply by wiping them with a damp cloth."

From Mrs. Amelia Ward of Elsinore, Calif.: "I wonder if Mrs Mary Stewart of Chicago remembers when the horse cars there had hay on the floor to keep the passengers' feet warm in winter I used to live on Wentworth ave nue."

From E. E. Meredith of Fairmont W. Va.: "I remember wher baker's bread was as much of a treat as homemade bread is today Older folks may remember wher all bread used by the family was baked at home. Sandwiches were a real treat for young folks 60 years ago, for they had biscuits and bread at home but buns were something different. Remember?"

From Mrs. Sallie P. West of Jasper, Ala.: "I remember when a two-seated surrey with a fringe around its canopy top was the last word in family conveyances."

From N. E. Jones of Cincinnati: "I remember when you could get the livers and other unwanted parts of a chicken free If times have changed!"

WHY CVA IS A NATIONAL ISSUE

The fight against the proposed Columbia Valley Administration is not primarily over the question of whether the government or regulated private enterprise will supply the Pacific Northwest's electric power. That is important, but it is a secondary matter. The big issue is whether we are ready to accept super-governments which would control the entire economics of the regions in which they would operate.

Does that sound like an exaggeration? If so, read the CVA bill and decide for yourself. The Seattle Times recently summed it up well in one long sentence when it said that the broad powers that would be given CVA "with respect to forest and forest lands, minerals, fish, land and land utilization and the power to engage in economic, scientific and technological investigation and studies and to establish, maintain and operate research facilities and to undertake experiments and practical demonstrations open the way for state socialization and bureaucratic control of vast activities in the region, including logging, lumbering, grazing, mining, agriculture, fishing and other activities which the directors of the corporation may find affect inter-state commerce and the general welfare."

Read that again digest it all and in all its ramifications. It explains why CVA is a national, not simply a regional, issue. If CVA is approved by Congress, it will be the pattern for things to come in all parts of the nation. Then, we can stop talking about state and local right, local initiative, local self-reliance, local control of local resources, for they will no longer exist. CVA is an important step in the drive to socialize this nation along the lines of the British model.

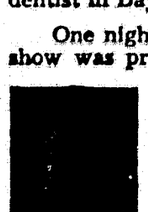
Get Job That You Want

HERE IS THE STORY of how one man got a job in the line of work he had been longing for, but which had seemed impossible of achievement. His name is William Bacher, a dentist in Bayonne, New Jersey.

One night by chance he went to a radio broadcast. The show was pretty poor. The idea struck him that he could write a better script than the one he was hearing.



D. Carnegie

Going home he listened for several nights to air shows, began to analyze them. He found that the writing of a show script was more complicated than he had realized, but he kept on studying air shows and trying to find what made a script tick. Finally he wrote three and pushed them into the mail. Back they came with the speed of a jet-plane, but he sent them out again and lo! he sold one. Finally he submitted an idea for a series to be called "Famous Trials of History" and that was accepted. Meantime he was filling teeth.

He decided to be an air producer which was quite a long jump ahead. He submitted scripts to the management of Station WGN, in Chicago, and wrote suggesting an idea for a change in the manner of presenting another program. Correspondence developed and William Bacher was invited to come out for a mutual size-up; he went, he saw, he got a job. He became Program and production chief at that studio. And now he gave up dentistry.

He wrote to a New York radio chain executive offering to analyze coast-to-coast air shows. The radio exec invited him to come to see him and William Bacher was there as fast as steam and electricity would take him.

As they discussed radio ideas, Bacher maneuvered the conversation around to a job. The boss asked him to submit another idea and this Bacher did. The upshot of it was that Bacher was offered a job as chain producer. He could hardly believe it himself, but there was the check coming in every week, and it didn't bounce.

Producing one of these shows fetched him to Hollywood and there he looked over into the cool movie pastures and decided he'd like to nibble some of their grass. First thing was to study the movies and try to find what made 'em tick, just as he had in radio. He sent a letter of suggestion, got a boss interested, and pretty soon he was offered a job as producer.

THIS WEEK in Washington

RATHER THAN SEE his farm program "so hamstrung that it would not work," Secretary Charles F. Brannan has asked the senate agricultural committee to eliminate all reference to his controversial farm plan from the senate farm bill. As a result the bill which came from the committee resembles in the main the house-passed bill which also had kicked overboard both the Brannan proposals and the Aiken farm law.

The senate bill picked up a few of the features now in the Aiken act, and no doubt the measure will wind up in a conference committee before final passage. As now constituted, the measure bears the imprint of former Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, senator from New Mexico.

The senate farm version calls for support of basic crops—corn, cotton, peanuts, rice, tobacco and wheat at 90 per cent of parity this year and reduction to as low as 75 per cent after 1950, if supplies become surplus. Milk and butterfat would be supported at 75 to 90 per cent. Wool, mohair, tung nuts and Irish potatoes will be supported at 60 to 90 per cent. All other farm products could be supported up to 90 per cent, while products which can be stored—oats, barley, rye and meats—would be supported at 50 to 75 per cent.

In the meantime the house continued to move ahead somewhat faster than the senate on the administration-supported measures, passed the minimum wage bill somewhat watered down and sent it along to the bogged-down senate. Final passage was on a roll call of 361 to 35. The bill would raise the national minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents and extend some other benefits to approximately 24 million workers.

For instance some of the amendments passed would exempt rural home workers who are unsupervised and make all the produce they sell; employees of newspapers with circulation below 5,000; workers in small telephone companies serving up to 500 clients; sawmill operators who hire fewer than 12 persons. The term "workday" is defined to mean whatever a collective bargaining agreement says it does.

The house grew tired of watching committee action on a joint house-senate lobby probe measure and passed its own bill providing for a house committee to investigate lobbying of both private organizations and governmental agencies.

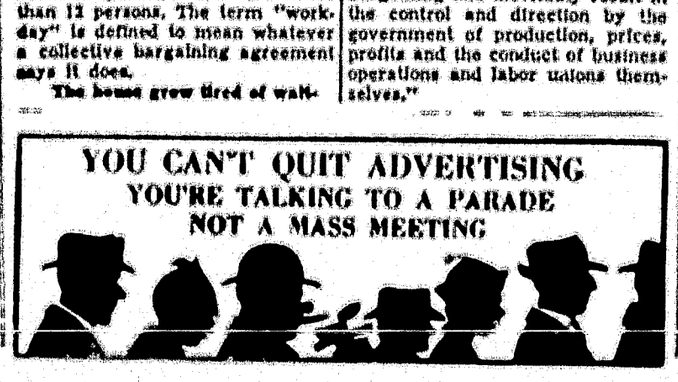
The senate finally passed the big foreign aid appropriations bill with $5,647,724,000, or about 10 per cent less than originally requested for use in fiscal year 1950. The first thing the house did was to knock out $344,000 which the senate had set up for use of an ECA watchdog committee.

Hearings on the military aid program, the B-36 probe and the investigation of "five percenters" continued to highlight the committee sessions. After the committee continually gibed at him for about a week, the president's military aid, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan came through with a statement asserting that he personally had given deep freeze units as presents to the little White House at Independence, Mo., one to the White House staff here and others to various others of his friends.

Observers here however, while deploring the embarrassment and the so-called officiousness of General Vaughan in behalf of his friends, point out that there has been no indication that any favors have been granted to General Vaughan in return for his efforts. One observer said, "There is certainly nothing here to suggest a scandal on the proportions of Teapot Dome."

The Washington Post says editorially concerning the deep freeze gifts, "After all, the sending of gifts of one kind or another to important public personages is an old American custom, and hardly a day goes by that gifts are not delivered at the White House. What to do with these gifts is one of the perennial problems."

The senate banking committee heard witnesses on the three-day work week now in progress by the miners, heard witnesses for the National Association of Manufacturers declare that industry-wide bargaining will "destroy collective bargaining and inevitably result in the control and direction by the government of production, prices, profits and the conduct of business operations and labor unions themselves."



"FAREWELL, A LONG FAREWELL"

BUSINESS & THE PUBLIC

DIGNITY IS A wonderful asset, but there are times when it can be overdone. We have in mind the rather "elevated attitude of the management of the big industries as opposed to the less dignified—but far more effective—publicity of the labor union bosses.

A broadcast for instance by Walter Reuther in a stirring radio manner, holds the interest, and often the sympathy, of the listener; while the drab voice of some industry official asserting actual facts and figures is turned off for some jazz band. So gradually owners and managers of industry, the majority of whom were formerly laboring men or white collar workers, have lost favor with the public.

Why doesn't industry go into the propaganda business in a more exciting and enticing way? Why, just as an illustration, doesn't it tell the romantic stories of the lives of Rockefeller, Ford, Harriman, Chrysler and many others dead and alive, who rose from the ranks before the dictators took over the unions and made that sort of thing virtually impossible?

Why doesn't it tell the public, through real radio speakers, that the millions of people who advanced the money to finance the industries get about 4½ cents out of every dollar taken in while labor gets from 25 cents to 30 cents? Why doesn't it dramatize it's position instead of spending "big money" on dull recitals? Then the public would listen and learn.

But just so long as the public is uninformed, and therefore apathetic, the union bosses are going to have their way; and if the "since the war" tempo of their inequitable demands continues, they are fairly certain to destroy our free-enterprise system and force upon this "last of the democracies" the same sort of incompetence which is gutting the British empire.

There is a move already underway by the economic adolescents who have misnamed themselves "liberals," to take over the economy of this nation and mismanage it. Industry knows this! Why won't it meet the threat? Forget the dignity!

RECRIMINATION . . . Air Force Secretary Stuart Symington appears before house armed services committee and demands that persons accusing him of wrongdoing in B-36 procurement be named. He assailed Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.), committee member.

Jesus and the Psalms

Lesson for September 11: Psalms 8:12; Matthew 21:15-16; Psalms 110: 1; Matthew 22:41-46; Psalms 118:22-23; Matthew 21:38-39, 42; Luke 22: 44

Memory Selection: Psalms 118:22

IN THE LESSON text it will be observed the passage from the Psalms is first given, then the New Testament verses that show our Lord's use of the Psalms quoted. This ready use of the Psalms, while he was in controversy with the Pharisees and Sadducees, shows how the Lord's mind was stored with the language of the Scriptures. And it illustrates how the Scriptures are an aid to those who are defending their faith.

In the first instance Jesus answered the chief priests and the scribes who took offence at the children's song in the temple. In the second our Lord silenced his enemies when they had declared that Christ is the son of David. In the third instance Jesus condemned the leaders of the people who rejected him as the Messiah.

Christ is found in the Old Testament as well as the New. While we usually think of the New Testament as concerned with Jesus the Christ, let us see and appreciate the large place he has in the Old. Today's lesson emphasizes that the coming of Jesus is forshadowed in the Psalms.

Of the several instances dealt with in the lesson, let us think of the discarded stone as becoming the head of the corner. The Lord who was rejected of his own people has found the preeminent place in the hearts of men the world around. May he be the corner stone in your own temple of life!

summer. Frank Witman, the dean of parimutuel operators in Maine, will again be in charge of the huge parimutuel plant located in the grandstand.

The opening day will be Young America Day with all school children in Oxford County admitted free. Throughout the week every child 12 years old and under will be admitted free.

Friday is 4-H Club Day with every boy and girl member of a club the guest of the fair society. Judging of 4-H dairy and beef cattle will take place at the dairy department with competent judges in charge.

Every minute of the week promises the patrons entertainment aplenty, reminiscent of the days of the honest to goodness county fairs of yesteryear. The 108th showing of Oxford County Fair will long be remembered as the biggest and best ever.

POULTRY SCHOOL

Big event of the week in agricultural circles will be the annual two day poultry school at the University of Maine, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 8 and 9. Out of state instructors at the school will be Gay T Klein, Extension poultryman, University of Massachusetts; and Leon Todd, managing director, Northeastern Poultry Council. Speakers from the University will include J Robert Smith, R W Gerry, and Cecil E Howes of the Poultry Department; Dr J Franklin Witter, animal pathologist; and Frank D Reed, Extension poultry specialist. An attendance of about two hundred is expected.

To the Parents of Bethel Village Grade Schools Pupils:

We are pleased to announce that on September 13, 1949 we shall begin our twentieth year of School Banking in the Bethel Village Schools. During that time, $17,924.30 has been deposited through your schools, and pupils have received from the bank $2,045 as rewards for 100% banking. We feel that this is indeed a record of which to be proud and hope that the pupils, parents and teachers who have shown such a fine spirit of cooperation in this effort have derived from it, as we have, much benefit and satisfaction.

This year we are introducing a new bookkeeping system for School Banking records, which we believe will prove to be very simple and satisfactory. Parents will receive descriptive letters and explanations will be available to teachers, superintendent and school committee. In addition, a representative of School Thrift, Inc., the company which is assisting with the new system, will address a fall meeting of your P. T. A.

Isn't this thrifty, educational and interesting activity worthy of your cooperation as a parent in helping YOUR child to participate.

PHILLIPS TRIPS BETHEL IN RETURN GO 6-4

The combination Raider - West Bethel team, with a Rumford Point appendage, journied to Phillips Sunday and was defeated by the Franklin County boys in a slow, at times loosely played, but nevertheless interesting contest, by the score of 6 to 4.

The Bethel boys took the lead in the second inning when a base on balls to Bennett, who promptly stole second, successive doubles by Clary Morgan and Al Smith and a neatly executed sacrifice by Charlie Smith netted three runs. The fourth tally came in the 7th when R Rolfe, who was hit by a pitched ball, completed the circuit when Wing's wing proved futile in efforts to prevent the daring, dashing, David Durgin and the rollicking Rolfe himself from committing the heinous acts commonly called base stealing.

Two hits, two errors and a wild pitch gave Phillips a brace of runs in the 5th. Every player on the home team reached first base in the fatal eighth. Three earned tenancy rights with clean singles, two were passed, an error accounted for one while others hustled down to greet and grin at Bennett as more or less successful efforts were made to prevent predecessors from advancing. Four completed the circuit, three fell by the wayside and three were stranded.

The Raider ace, Bob Buker, was pitching one of his best games this season when, by virtue of the reciprocal arrangement made when the syndicate was formed, he was replaced by Rolfe in the 5th. Master of the situation at all times he fanned three, allowed but two balls to be hit beyond infield limits, one of which was grabbed by Charlie Smith, the other being scored as a triple for shortstop Burnham. Mr Burnham went directly from third to his fielding position when Stinchfield, fourth up in the first inning, fouled to Baker.

WEST BETHEL OUTLAST RAIDERS IN DRAB GAME, 5-4

Raider efforts to gain at least a toe hold on the second step of the ladder leading from the Oxford Twi League cellar proved ineffective when, on Monday afternoon, they were defeated 5 to 4 by the second place West Bethel nine. The game was played before a small but enthusiastic audience on Thurston Field.

The Raiders outslugged the West Bethel boys, collecting nine hits for a dozen bases against four for four but Rolfe's effectiveness when the going was toughest was a major factor in the final outcome.

Guerrilla efforts to stage a successful rally in the ninth were thwarted when with the tying run on third the elaborate signal system collapsed and Rolfe forced the hard hitting Glenn Witter to ground to second for the final out.

TO INCREASE SIZE OF HYDE MEMORIAL HOME TO CARE FOR POLIO PATIENTS

John R Newell, President of the Pine Tree Society for Crippled Children and Adults, Inc., has announced that every effort will be made to increase the capacity of the Hyde Memorial Home to meet the needs of the poliomyelitis patients who need convalescent care. The wing of the Home has been converted to care for adults and there are now 58 patients in the Home. The staff has been increased so that every case needing therapeutic care will receive very specialized treatment. It has been proved that the children respond more rapidly to treatment at the Home when it is given as soon as possible after the contagious period is over. Mrs Marie I Preston, the Executive Director of the Society, has conferred with Dr Dean Fisher and Dr Ella Langer of the Department of Health and Welfare, Donald Taverner, District Representative of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Dr Carl Ruhlin, State Medical Polio Coordinator, and Dr Francis Winchenbach of Bath, a member of the Society's Medical Advisory Committee, so that the patients needing care can be referred to the Home as soon as their isolation period is over.

The Pine Tree Society's camp for crippled children at North Pond, Rome, closed a very successful season, and ninety children had eight weeks of real camping, which included physical, occupational and speech therapy, which meant they were given the opportunity to greatly improve their handicaps. The deep appreciation expressed by the parents of these handicapped youngsters was most gratifying to the Society. Staton R Curtis, the Director of Professional Services of the Society, directed the camp, and he has returned to Bath to devote full time to the direction of the Hyde Memorial Home.

WINNERS in the annual model car competition of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild are Bruce Lane (left), of Portland, who took first state honors in the Junior Division (ages 12 through 15), and Robert Burner, Jr., of Falmouth, whose beautiful model car won first in the Senior Division (ages 16 through 19). Each received a cash award of $150, and Lane's model went on to take regional honors and a chance to win a university scholarship in the national competition.

Successful Parenthood

BY

MRS. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor, Parents' Magazine

DO YOU HAVE MORE difficulty getting one child up and doing in the morning than you do the other children? It's a rare family that hasn't one laggard. In pioneer days, when every minute of daylight was precious for getting done the myriad chores necesary to keep the family fed and clothed, such a child was usually regarded as lazy.

But we have finally come to know that all body mechanisms don't do their work at the same speed. It has long been admitted that some persons need more sleep than others. Now we are beginning to understand that different things happen to the body during sleep. Some, for instance, find their bodies almost a dead weight in the mornings. Others are apt to be at their physical best after a night's rest.

Accepting the fact that persons start off the day at varying rates of activity, what can you do to help the child who finds it necessary literally to pull himself together in the mornings?

To begin with, you will probably find him wanting to stay up later at night than the other children, who will have worn themselves out by bedtime. His energies may be scarcely past their peak by then. However, since his day must be regulated by the same clock as his schoolmates, every effort should be made to establish an early hour for going to bed. But since you can't force sleep on him, some leniency is necesary in the matter of reading in bed or playing quiet games with himself.

If he is still awake when you retire bring him an orange or two buttered crackers, but no liquids. Sit by him while he eats and try to turn his active thoughts into more placid ones by reminding hm of a day's fishing you once enjoyed together or a long walk in the woods. Or play a game to see which of you can act more like the family cat dozing before the fire.

In the mornings work out a program of family rising that will take into account the state of each person's energies. The one who is most fully awake when his feet touch the floor can be appointed the family getter-upper. This may be father or mother or even a 10-year-old child. After waking the others he starts a hot drink brewing-cocoa for the children, coffee or tea for the grownups. If mother is the first riser she will marshal the widest awake of the children into the bathroom first. By the time the hot drink is ready he will be nearly enough dressed to carry a cup of cocoa to his still dozing brother or sister. The hot drink will provide fuel to start the latter's brain and body functioning.

It is better for a child to perform this service than for mother, since there should be no suggestion of invalidism or favoritism about this morning pampering of the slow waker. In return, he should be assigned a service in the evenings for his sleepier brother, such as the final putting away of toys or games.

In other words, put the whole program on the casual basis of who does best, what and when. It is all in line with our repeated reminders that the surest way of treating your children with equal fairness is to discover in what ways they need to be handled differently.

THE MIDDLES — By Bob Karp

Luscious Peach Shortcakes

Shortcakes continue in popularity, for juicy fresh peaches now on the market make the topping for a rich biscuit base.

Fresh peaches can be enjoyed in many desserts throughout the season, but few are more popular than shortcakes. Since peaches are usually more economically priced than berries, peach shortcake is a good dessert treat for the modest budget.

The individual shortcakes pictured are made just like biscuits, except that a little sugar is added to the dry ingredients to make a slightly sweet foundation. If larger shortcakes are preferred, cutting the rolled dough with a three-inch cutter should make enough to serve six.

Healthful eating is beautifully packaged in this peach shortcake, for the enriched biscuits contribute B-vitamins and iron, the juicy peaches vitamins A and C.

PEACH SHORTCAKES

2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
4 tablespoons shortening
½ to ⅔ cup milk
Sweetened sliced peaches
Butter or margarine

Sift together flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Cut or rub in shortening. Add milk to form a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently one-half minute. Pat or roll out one-half inch thick. Cut with two and one-half inch biscuit cutter. Bake on ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Split crosswise. Spread bottom layer lightly with butter or margarine. Cover with sweetened peaches and replace top layer. Cover with more peaches. Makes about nine shortcakes.

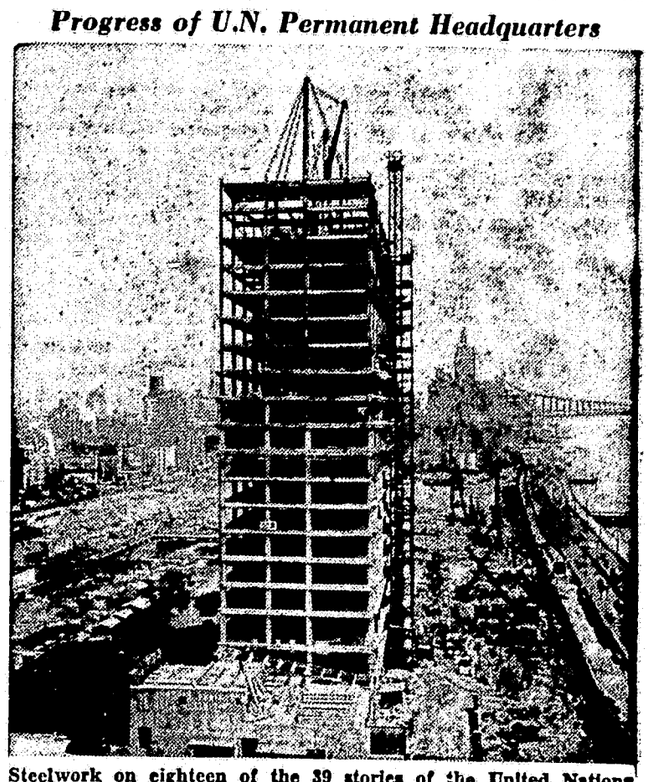
Progress of U.N. Permanent Headquarters



Steelwork on eighteen of the 39 stories of the United Nations Secretariat building in mid-Manhattan, New York, was completed in July when this picture was taken. A contract was signed by U.N. and the American Bridge Company for the furnishing and erection of structural steel for the meeting hall area of the Permanent Headquarters. The contract calls for 10,500 tons of structural steel at a cost of $2,225,000. Delivery is to be made by next October, and erection is expected to be completed by April or May 1950.

Nobody's Business

There is a law which forbids passing a school bus which is stopped without first stopping your car. A strict observance of this law will do much to save lives of children, who many times should not be expected to exercise mature judgment in crossing the highway. And this is especially true in the hurry of getting home or in the hustle to avoid keeping the bus waiting in the morning. Let's hope that authorities will make an effort to enforce this law.

Speaking of laws—remember we are neither lawyer nor officer—many are hoping that the law which applies to throwing rubbish in rivers will have some teeth in it. Bethel seems to be "on the spot" with its dump troubles and the new law becoming effective at the same time. However, at the citizens' meeting Tuesday evening an unusual spirit of serious cooperation was noticeable. Several suggestions were offered and locations proposed which were given lengthy and friendly consideration and discussion. And most of those present seemed encouraged to have to hope that a practical solution will be reached soon.

Back to schools again. They say that these School Zone signs mean 15 miles an hour. We didn't know that before, but we did know that Stop signs mean STOP? Did you?

The Androscoggin bridge looks pretty nice in its new coat of green. That's the color of all Maine's bridges as the repainting operations proceed.

SEVENTH BIRTHDAY

In Bethel, Aug. 28, by Rev. William Penner, Philip Cummings of Locke Mills and Mrs Ada Conner of Bethel.

In Rockland, Sept. 2, Emery H McIntyre of Bingham and Miss Lee Nary of Bethel.

THE CORN TOP'S RIPE

Off The Deep End

—Knott A. Grain—

"In a tense and hazardous descent 2,500 feet into the Pacific ocean in a five-foot steel ball, Otis Barton, a Boston engineer, set a record for deep-sea diving by an individual."
—News item.

Some people will sink to any depths to establish some kind of a record. This was an altitude record in reverse.

Mr. Barton evidently is a person who likes to get below the surface of things.

The steel ball was equipped with its own air supply, lights, cameras, two observation windows and telephone. If it's in a rent-control area, we'll take it. That is, if the landlord will promise to send a man out to mow the fish.

Mr. Barton was in constant communication with the surface — didn't want to miss any of the "five-percenters" investigation.

The steel ball was lowered by a winch. He isn't the first man to be let down by a woman.

Mr. Barton was getting his oxygen from bottles within the ball. He may not have thought of it at the time, but if he established extended residence down there, his home would be a darned difficult stop for the milk man to make.

On the way down and back, he reported a continuous parade of small luminous marine creatures, variously resembling jellyfish, eels, squids, shrimp and worms. Well, we generally meet the craziest people too, when we travel. We've yet to meet a squid, but one time there was a couple of octopuses in the seat behind us.

One part of his report said: "There's a luminous worm dancing a jig, outside the window." Probably some drunk waiting for the elevator. Did he tap on the window and say, "Roof garden, please?"

Mr. Barton said all signs of surface light vanished at the 1,000-foot level and it became so cold he was afraid of getting a cramp. Somebody should have warned him: he could be investigated for receiving a "deep freeze."

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank our many friends and relatives who helped our children give us a surprise party in honor of our 25th wedding anniversary. To all those who did not attend but sent flowers, cards and gifts, to Sunset Rebekah Lodge, to Mrs Tibbetts for the original poem.
